THE Hawaiian situation is decidedly in teresting. King Kalakaua is actually de prived of all power, and it is very uncer tain what will be the outcome of the revo lution, whether Kalakana will be retained in power as a figure head, with a responsi ble ministry, or will be formally deposed and some other form of government adopted. As a matter of fact, the for elepers on the islands are the ruling power and they are thoroughly aroused against Gibson, the late prime minister, who is known to be a man of bad antecedents and worse principles. It is possible that the king, released from the domination of this had man, will be retained in power and the present form of government continued, It is a singular fact that Mr. C. C. Moreno. for many years a resident of the islands, in Jest August wrote Kalakaus a letter, in which he predicted his downfall unless removed. The government of the United States has a plain duty in the premises, and that is to maintain peace and good order on the islands, and to prevent any European power from gaining the elightest foothold on them. The Sandwich

Islands are too important to the future of this country for this government to permit, even at the cost of war, any other nation interfering with their independence.

Gov. Shepherd's Triumph.

In this morning's issue of the NATIONAL REPUBLICAN will be found an interesting interview with ex-Gov. Alexander R. Shepherd which will be read with interest, not only by the citizens of Washington, but will undoubtedly attract general interest throughout the country. It is the first time any connected narrative of the history of the wenderful improvements by which Washington was transformed from a stragging and grass grown village to the most beautiful city in the world has been printed. Mr. Shepherd's energy, enterprise, and boldness saved the capital of the nation from being removed to the west. The full import of the convention of seventeen western and southern states was realized by Mr. Shepherd, and he at once set about so vast and startling a series of internal municipal improvements as guaranteed the retention of the capital at Washington, which the father of his country himself selected as its location. Heroic work was needed and man of nerve was required to accomplish berd, who had no sympathy with the halfhearted and timid croakers who threw up their hands in horror when the expense was mentioned. Money hall terrors for Aleck Shepherd, whose grand object was eventually accomplished, nd the United States government was forced to pay its just share of the debts of the city where its capital was located, Gov. Shepherd's triumph resulted in immeasur benefit to the city of Washington and the sentiments of the citizens show that his magnificent work has been hand

Ex-Senator Warner Miller, who has bee ome days at Saratoga, in an interview somely appreciated.

Well, I have always believed that the Pres dent would be renominated if he makes the effort to be. He has his party all over the country pretty well in hand. How much he has injured himself by his recent rebel flac performances and by his letter to the St. Louis veterans is an important question, though 1 toubt if his party, strictly speaking, likes him

After discussing the inability of the Democrats to agree upon any plan to re fuce the surplus Senator Miller continued n answer to the question whether the Republicans were united in their ideas as to what should be done to reduce the surplus:

"Substantially they are. Of course there is such a thing as a free trade Republican, but he is not numerous enough to affect his party's action in the slightest degree. He can neither prevent it nor modify it. Were the Republi cans in power, the surplus question would be settled in one session harmoniously and with-out disturbing the country's business one

What would their action be?" "They would adopt the only feasible plan They would repeal the internal revenue tax on tobacco in whole, or substantially so. They would reduce the tax on sugar and place on the free list all raw materials not produced in his country. These, however, are few in number. The free list is already tremendous much larger than most people suppose, for about one-third of all the importations come in without paying duty. The figures for the fiscal year of 1886 show that out of $600,000,000 of importations $212,000,000 came in on the free list. These are chiefly raw materials, such ss rubber, silk, hides, spices, tea, coffee, and tropical woods. It is possible in this way to reduce the revenue about $75,000,000 a year, which is quite sufficient, It is not safe nor desirable for a covernment to make its revenue and expenditures balance, for if the business o the country should have a set-back importament would soon find itself with an insufficient reasury. In our case it would be very bad policy to reduce the revenue more than $75.-200,000, for we are about to undertake a great work of navy improvement, of coast defense and of river and harbor works, which for sev eral years will largely increase our expondi-ures. If the Democratic plan of lopping of the tariff be carried out, the result would be an awful financial disaster, and the object sought of revenue reduction would not be trary, be an immediate increase of rev-All experience shows this. make good our exchanges." Look at This, Workingmen. The German Iron and Steel Industrial Association has made an inquiry this year into the conditions of wages and the finan cial results of the joint stock companies be fore and after the re-establishment of the duties on iron. The replies of 233 prominent iron smelting firms, foundries, and machine factories, among which 94 are joint-stock companies, have been sent in from all parts of the empire. in January, 1879, these 233 works employed 124,262 workpeople, who received per mouth a total of 7,681,291 marks as wages. That is an average of fourteen dollars and sixty-five cuts a month-shout what our fron and steel workers average per week. One exceptional good workman made $16 a month. The companies earned 2.15 per cent. on their capital stock after paying these enormous wages. Our free trade friends want the products of the labor of these men who earn less than $15 a month to come free into this country to compete with the products of our workingmen. If they do, our iron works must close or wages must come down to the German level. Workingmen can see what free trade means for them.

THE New York World has been making equiries by which it finds that seventy per cent. of the labor vote in New York city is drawn from the Democratic party. Basing its calculations upon this percentage and the votes polled in the last elections the World shows that had there been a labor candidate Blaine's majority in New York would have been nearly 23,000 and Ira Davenport's majority over Hull would have been 13,000. There is very little doub but that there will be a labor candidate for the Presidency in the field next year as well as a prohibition candidate, and that each of the great parties in making their platforms will endeavor to draw voters from these two organizations. At any rate the labor element, in the field with a dis-tinctive candidate, will derange Democratic calculations to a very great extent The Republican party has nothing to fear from a labor party most of whose votes will be drawn from the large cities. THE people of Washington will honor themselves by offering to ex-Gov. Shepherd, when his health permits, the grandest public reception ever tendered to sny man in this country. To him they owe the fact that to-day Washington is one of the most beautiful cities in the world. George Washington, with wonderful prescience, selected the most beautiful and appropriate site for the nation's capital, and Alexander Shepherd made the capital a city worthy of the nation. The two men, so far as this city is concerned, ought to rank together-one a the founder and the other as the savior and beautifier of a great city, and whateve honor can be done to "Aleck" Shepherd will not be amiss. He deserves it all. Every one acknowledges this, and every one should give "honor to whom honor i

OH! RIGHTEOUS JUDGE.

An Equitable Decision as to the Rights of the Government Printing Office Employes.

The first comptroller of the treasury yesterday rendered a decision of considerable importance to employes and ex-employee importance to employes and ex-employes of the government printing office. Public Frinter Benedict applied to him for an opision on the set of Congress granting employes fifteen days' leave of absence with pay. The public printer held that no employe was entitled to the leave untitionable and been served. That is, if a man had worked in the office one full year he was entitled to the leave, but if he was discharged before the completion of the second year he had no sound claim for a proportionate share of the fifteen days' holiday, or pay in lieu thereof.

Comptroller Durham decided that the law requires employes to be in the service one year before any leave can be taken; but affer the first year each employe is entitled to leave or, if discharged, to pay in lieu thereon in proportion to the months they have served.

The decision continues: "I am forced to the conclusion that the law does not require a year's continuous service, after the

The decision continues: "I am forced to the conclusion that the law does not require a year's continuous service, after the first year, to entitle an employe to receive leave with pay. The act provides that before they shall receive fifteen days' leave of absence they must have served continuously for one year, but after that time I think they are entitled to one and a half days for each month of service. Should you find it to the interest of the government to dismiss one of the employees at the expiration of six months from the end of his first year, it is my opinion that he would be entitled to seven and a half days' pay; at the expiration of three months to three and three-quarters days' pay, and at that rate for lesser time. This is the rule adopted in this department (treasury), and I see no reason why the same rule should not apply to your office. You must be the judge as to when it may be proper to grant leave in each case where the employe continues in the service, as the act gives you this discretion. I think that this construction of the statute is fair and equitable, as between the employe and the government, and it is in accordance, as I have said before, with the established custom of the Treasury Department."

This decision will affect all those employers.

in the Office of the Treasurer of the United States. The count of the cash and securities in the treasurer's office, which began May 23, will probably be concluded this week, as will probably be concluded this week, as only the geld coin remains to be counted. The funds on hand amounted to $95,500,000, of which $61,500,000 was in standard sliver dollars, $25,000,000 in gold coin, $2,000,000 in fractional sliver coin, and the balance in notes and certificates. In examining the sliver vault several bags containing standard dollars were found to be short two or three pieces each. These were gradually recovered, however, as the count progressed, until all were found. So far as known not a single penny's deficiency has yet been found.

Assistant Secretary Thompson has directed the assistant treasurers of the United States who have accounts with Messrs. The examination of the accounts of these officers will not be completed before the end of the week. The examination of the accounts of the disbursing officers of the second auditor's and sixth auditor's offices has been virtually completed, and though no formal report has yet been made the Secretary has been informed that the result was entirely satisfactory. "Yea, it sounds nice; but, as a usual thing, a person whose life you have saved doesn't care to have it mentioned, or, in fact, to see you afterward. I have known men who were pulled out of the water almost in their last gasp, and, as soon as they came around, would be very indignant at their rescuer, claiming that they were perfectly able to take care of themselves, and did not want any interference. A great many men who have been saved from drowning would walk around a mile to avoid meeting the man who saved them. It seems they dislike to be in the presence of their rescuer. I suppose it galls them to feel that they are under obligations to him. I know a swimmer who is on record as saving seventy-six lives on the Jersey coast, and I don't suppose one of these people would care to meet him to day. One of the seventy-six, a poor gentleman who lives in Philadelphia to-day, was the only one who showed any appreciation of the services readered. He saved up a few dollars and had a little grold medial made, which he presented to his rescuer nearly one year afterward.

Of course, every one thought he would at least express some gratitude at being saved. You can imagine the surprise when he turped on Webb in an angry fashion and said: 'The
